Additional Information: The aquatics-based Autism Respite Program gives kids an opportunity to move and exercise, while increasing their comfort and familiarity in the water, with other people, and in a recreational environment that is conducive to their needs.

For each three-hour session, children are each paired with a qualified staff instructor. They start in the pool, swimming for 45 minutes to two hours, depending on the interest of each child. Next, they have a snack and then take advantage of the Childwatch facility, dance studio, gymnasium, outside fields, or playground. The program also encourages socialization through group play and instructor interaction. Because children are working one-on-one with an instructor, their time at the Y can be flexible, based on each child's needs and desires that day. The program is offered throughout the year.
